

BD FOOD SAFETY

FOREIGN SUPPLIER VERIFICATION PROGRAM

Get Online FSVP Training and food safety training from BD Food Safety to learn regulatory requirements for imported food, which is something that can be lacking in other food safety training programs. Food Safety standards associated with imported food can be somewhat different than what the standards are here in the U.S.

FSVP Requires that imported foods meets the same level of public health requirements as food made in the U.S. Successfully completing this course will help you to understand the FSVP requirements and how these requirements can be met in your particular circumstances.

Who Needs FSVP Training?

- Food importers located in the United States
- Brokers and exporters of foreign food
- Grocery stores that buy inventory from international suppliers
- Restaurants that source overseas supplies for fresh food preparation
- Representatives who handle the importation of foreign food

The Role of FSVP Courses

- Understanding the proper documentation processes for foreign foods
- Getting to know foreseeable hazards with foods from certain places
- Examining a foreign supplier's performance
- Familiarizing yourself with risks that can be posed by contaminated or adulterated food
- Learning how to conduct supplier verification processes
